The Center for Children and Families is seeking children with no history of mental or physical health diagnoses for a study that will help us better understand the ways in which emotional development and physical health are linked in both healthy children and children who have been diagnosed with ADHD.

⇒ Receive a free assessment on your child's behavior, along with a free IQ and academic achievement screening test.
⇒ Receive $100 for your time and a toy prize for your child.
⇒ Appointments available evenings and Saturdays.
⇒ All information obtained is confidential and no medications are given.
⇒ Child must complete a 2-hour intelligence and academic achievement test. Parents must complete questionnaires on their child's behavior.

For more information, contact jsamart@fiu.edu or call 305-501-0916